

How big of an inverter do I need for home use

Overview

Do I need an inverter size chart?

The need for an inverter size chart first became apparent when researching our DIY solar generator build. Solar generators range in size from small generators for short camping trips to large off-grid power systems for a boat or house. Consequently, inverter sizes vary greatly.

How big should a solar inverter be?

To account for power losses assume an 80 percent efficiency. Your solar inverter should have a similar or slightly higher wattage rating than the DC output of your solar panels (which in this case is 4.5 kW). You can size it between 1.15 and 1.5 times larger. The rule of thumb is to size your inverter 1.25 bigger than your solar array.

Can a solar inverter be too big?

Oversizing or having an inverter that is too big for your solar panels will not produce enough electricity. Undersizing or having an inverter that's too small will convert a limited amount of energy. You can avoid both of these scenarios by following these three basic steps to solar inverter sizing.

How to choose a solar inverter?

Choose an inverter that has a surge watt rating equal to or greater than this value. As for voltage drop, check the wire length between your solar panels and the batteries. If the wire length is long, you may need to choose a lower voltage system (12V, 24V, or 48V) to minimize voltage drop.
