What is the difference between monocrystalline and polycrystalline solar panels?

Monocrystalline solar panels cost 0.90–1.20 per watt , offering 18–22% efficiency due to pure silicon, while polycrystalline panels are cheaper at 0.70–1.00 per watt but less efficient (15–17%). Monocrystalline lasts 25–30 years with 0.3–0.5% annual degradation, whereas polycrystalline degrades 0.5–0.8% yearly.

What factors affect the cost of monocrystalline solar panels?

Power Rating: The power rating, quantified in watts (W), is a critical factor affecting the cost of monocrystalline solar panels. Power rating signifies the maximum amount of electricity that a panel produces under ideal conditions. Monocrystalline solar panels are high-performing, offering power ratings in the range of 300W to 400W.

How much power does a monocrystalline solar panel have?

The best monocrystalline solar panels have power ratings upwards of 500W, with some exceeding 600W and even 700W. In contrast, you'll struggle to find a polycrystalline panel with a power rating above 400W, and they've long fallen around 20% below monocrystalline models, according to data analysts Wood Mackenzie.
